

LEGAL DISCLAIMER

Rincon Organic Buying Club (ROBC) is a privately operated organic buying club group created for the purpose of obtaining discount prices on a variety of natural health and wellness food/products. The group is run purely by the volunteering efforts of the group's owners and its members.

Since ROBC is a personal service to friends, family, and our community and there are no membership fees to join or participate in the group, members must be especially aware of the inherent risks involved in participating in a buying club such as ours. As part of the membership process, members must read the following disclaimer and, if in agreement, type "yes" in answer to the disclaimer question on the online membership form. This disclaimer will finalize your membership into our group. Thank you!

- The nutrition and health information found on the ROBC website or shared via the email distribution list (e-list) are based on research and personal experiences from the group owners and its members.
- Because there is some risk involved when changing diet and lifestyles, ROBC owners and its members are not responsible for any adverse effects or consequences that might result. Please do not apply the techniques of the information shared on the website or email list if you are not willing to assume the risks. If you do use the shared information without the approval of a health professional, you are prescribing for yourself, which is your constitutional right, but we assume no responsibility.
- With regards to product orders, the extent which vendors are responsible for their products that we order begins from the point of the ordering process, to product delivery, and then to the inspection of the delivered products by ROBC owners and/or members, for accuracy and any product defects.
- Additional handling and shipping beyond the vendors' responsibility is the point at which members assume all responsibility and risks for their orders. It is at this point that products, which are accidentally damaged (ie: dropped, ripped, thawed, etc), either in part or in full, must be considered a loss for the member. ROBC owners will do their best to ensure products are well taken care of and accidents do not occur. However, co-op days can be very busy and, although extremely rare, accidents will be bound to happen. ROBC owners and its volunteering members assume no responsibility for any products accidentally damaged in their care.
- Any loss recovery assistance beyond the scope of this disclaimer is at the sole discretion of ROBC owners, its volunteering members, and vendors (should they be contacted for assistance), with no guarantee of any financial recovery or product replacement.
